SCHOOL DAZE

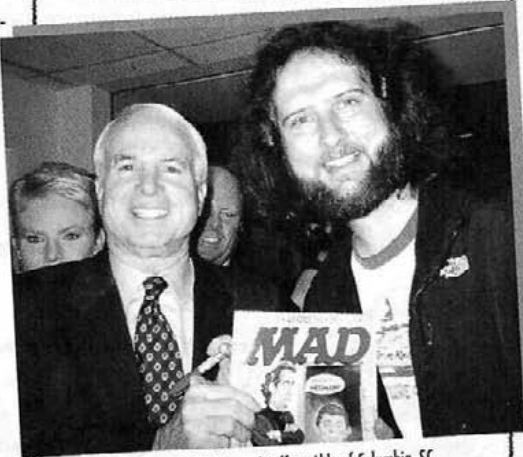

As I sat here staring blankly at my Pre-Calculus homework, the bane of my existence, I wondered for the zillionth time: What is the point of math, especially Calculus and Algebra? I then remembered an English assignment that I still hadn't done yet, which was to write a letter to a magazine. The answer became perfectly clear: Write MAD and see if they know the point of math. Also, if you print this letter, hopefully I will get a better grade in English than I have in Pre-Calculus. By the way, what is the answer to $\text{Log}_2(4^2 \cdot 3^4)$?

Ryan Healey, Dryden, MI

Heals — We write the following with much trepidation. The simple fact is there is a code of silence, an oath that must be taken for all those who enter adulthood. The penalty for breaking this oath is death. Nonetheless, we break it here today because we care about you, Ryan Healey. Here is the truth: Calculus doesn't matter. You will never, ever, under any circumstances, have a practical application for this mind-numbing numbers crap. Likewise, all those dates you have to memorize for History — garbage. Unless your big plan in life is to become a contestant on Jeopardy!, you will never need to know that Columbus set sail in 1514, or that the 100 Years War ran from 1864-1952. Ditto dissection of frogs, French and anything by that English-as-a-second-language-hack, Shakespeare. There you have it, the cat's out of the bag! See ya on the honor roll! —Ed. P.S. Please keep this between us and don't show this issue to any of your student friends! —Ed.

MAD CELEBRITY SNAPS

Last issue we quoted Senator John McCain saying "As you know my dear friends, Alfred E. Neuman is a national hero." No sooner did we print it, then — bam! — this Celebrity Snap arrives in our mailbox. Congrats to Jeffrey Able of Columbia, SC for his three-year subscription, which coincidentally will run through much of the first term of the Gore administration!

DOLLARS AND NONSENSE

I am a long time reader of your trade journal, MAD magazine. I find your publication both entertaining and informative. However, I have noticed a lack of financial content. I would like to see more coverage of Wall Street, economic and capital market news. Financial issues have become more prevalent in the media. I think that MAD could parody risk pricing methodologies and that your readers would appreciate some derivative and call option humor.

Mark Glitto, Esq., Via madmag.com

Glitter — It's rare that we receive a letter that so accurately pinpoints our editorial shortcomings. Rest assured that we have shared your comments with the highest levels of this organization and have already taken steps to correct our lack of financial-based comedy. Here's a sneak peek at an upcoming article, "You Know You're a Derivative and Call Options Geek When...": 1) Your computer has an Alan Greenspan screen saver; 2) You've been slapped with restraining orders from Maria Bartiromo, Alice Rivlin and Louis Rukeyser; 3) You once sold gold futures short in an attempt to cover Yen options which had a call of 30 and a buy of 13 over a three-day holiday with markets closed and overseas trading heavy to fund an IPO debentures offering in a cyclical despite unemployment figures indicating otherwise! See ya on the street! —Ed.

BUSH LEAGUE POLITICS

Tis the political season and more than one person has pointed out the striking physical resemblance between George W. Bush and MAD's own What, Me Worry? kid, Alfred E. Neuman. Actually, their physical resemblance is just the beginning of the eerie coincidences between George W. and Alfred E! Fact: Bush's first name contains six letters, Neuman's first name contains six letters. Both Bush and Neuman use a middle initial as part of their whole names. Both Bush and Neuman have run for President and both had trouble generating much enthusiasm as a candidate! Bush has no comprehensible foreign policy and is thought of by most as an intellectual lightweight. Well, perhaps this is where the comparison breaks down!

THIS MODERN WORLD

by TOM TOMORROW

Reading counterclockwise: AP photo of Bush holding an Alfred statue in which someone replaced one idiot grin with another; the cover of The Fairfield County Weekly February 10, 2000; and a Tom Tomorrow cartoon in which it's obvious Tomorrow had no idea that day!

"THE SPENDING ANNEX"

January 21, 2000

Dear MAD Magazine Editor:

After being featured in Time, The Wall Street Journal and The New York Times, we are proud to finally make the ranks of MAD Magazine! And, although we have been featured in various types of media from sitcoms to science fiction movies, your piece will go down as one of our most memorable times in the limelight. We can't tell you how much we enjoyed your satire on The Learning Annex. You had the office howling.

Parody is the greatest form of flattery and you've done a superb job. Your attention to detail is amazing - from our typeface and logo design to our layout and style. Bravo!

We continue to enjoy your deeply reflective political rhetoric and insightful social commentaries. We can't wait to see what you come up with for your follow-up issue.

What do you call a busload of thirty lawyers falling off a cliff? A good start! What do you call a cast load of six lawyers going through the motions in a lame legal melodrama? We call it...

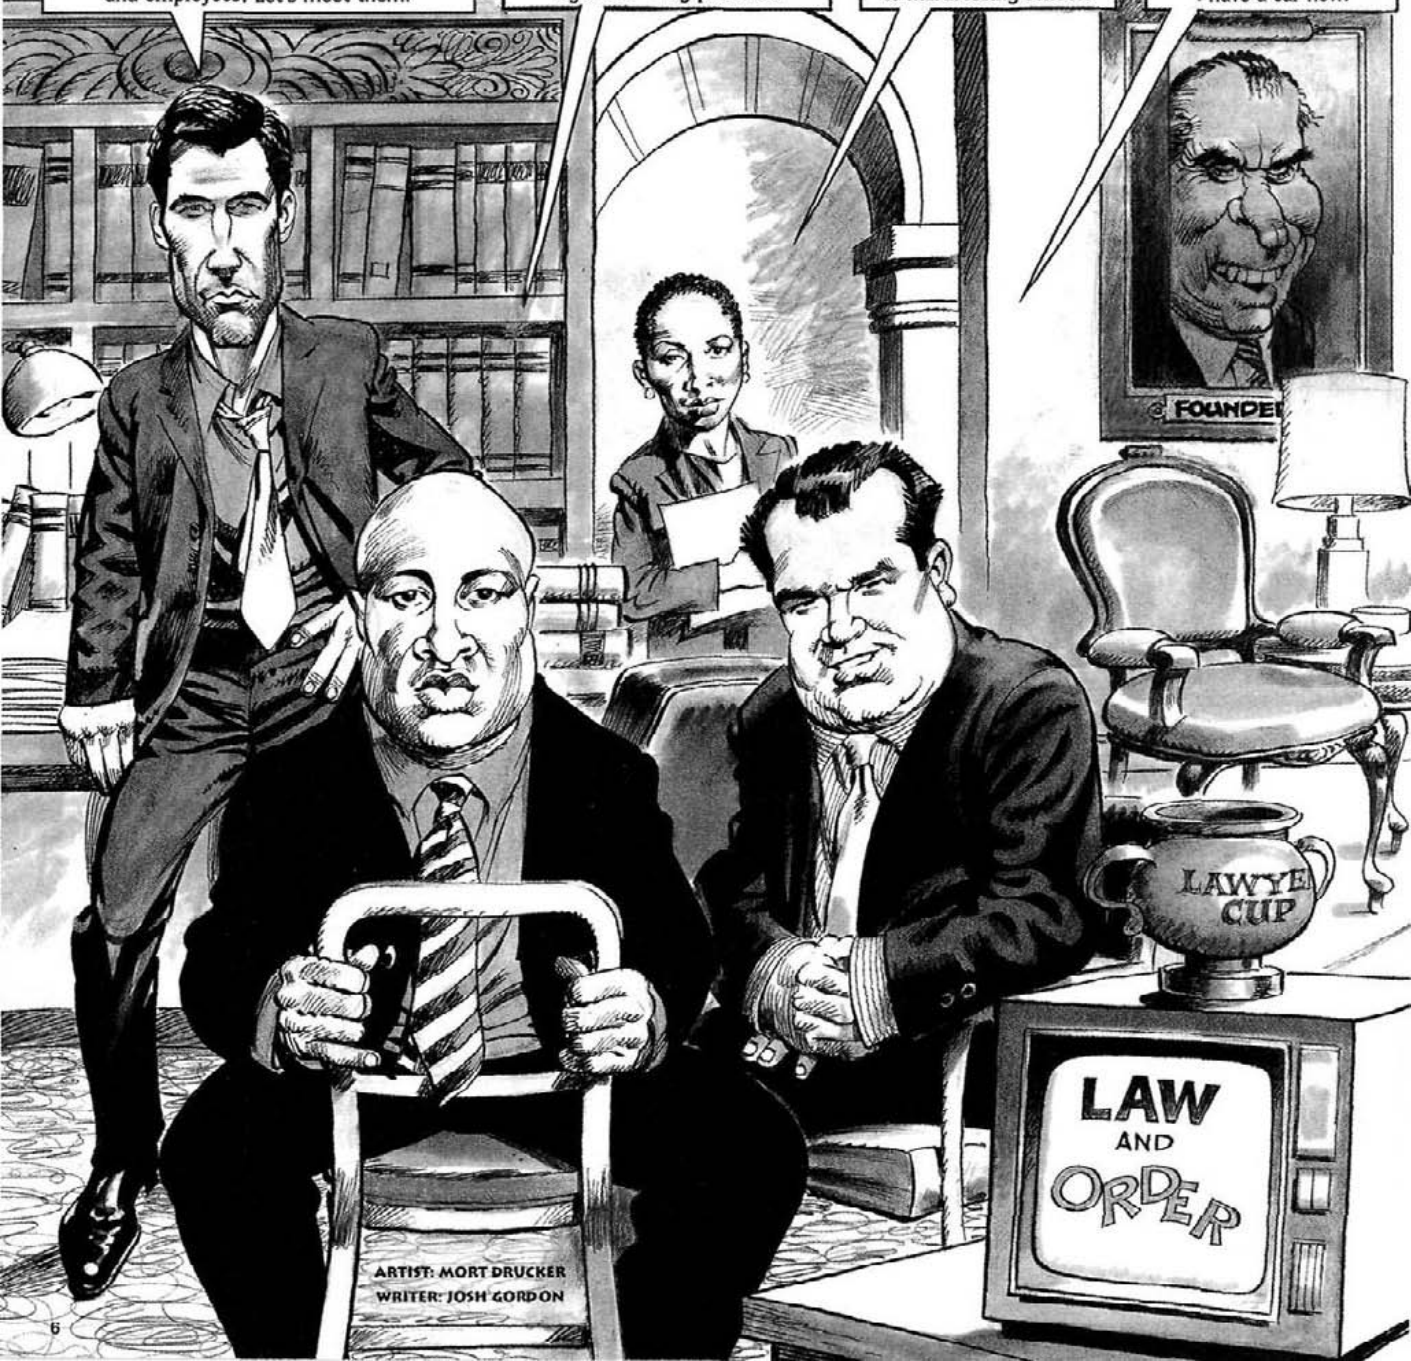

THE

I'm Bibby Donutt! I run the Boston law office of Donutt, Yank, Doll & Frappel! Our motto: "Give us the scum of society and we'll keep them out of jail and on the streets!" We specialize in the bizarre! Got a severed head in a bowling bag? Give us a call! Got a dead dwarf glued to a prostitute? We're your team! It's gritty work! Every day I deal with tortured souls, neurotics and sociopaths! They're my partners and employees! Let's meet them!

I'm Huge Gene Yank! My partners often question our belief in what is right and what is wrong! I don't question! I KNOW we're wrong! But we'll defend you anyway! You want bail - no problem! You want to cut a plea bargain deal - no problem! You want justice but don't have our $300 an hour legal fee - big problem!

I'm Tribeca Wishbone! I was a secretary, then worked my butt off going to law school at night to become a partner with this firm! Now that I've succeeded, I realize something - I've hitched my wagon to a team of idiots! I should've gone to hairdressing school!

I'm Jumbo Berloophole! I do the grunt work. I look like I belong in the Bada Bing Club with the Sopranos, not in a Boston law firm! I started my career chasing ambulances. I huffed and puffed! Couldn't catch them! Fortunately, I have a car now!

MALPRACTICE

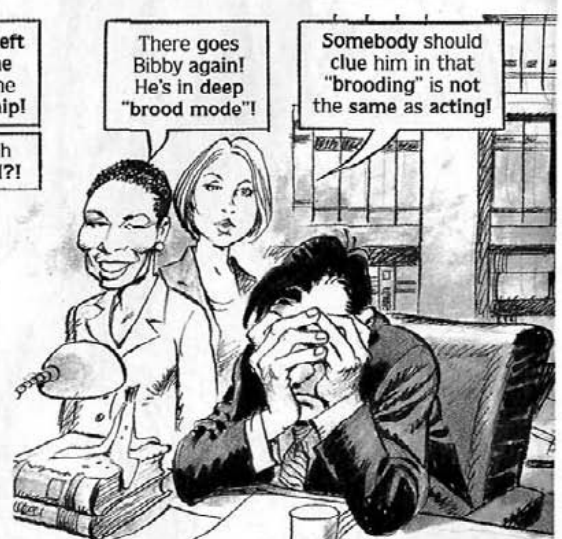

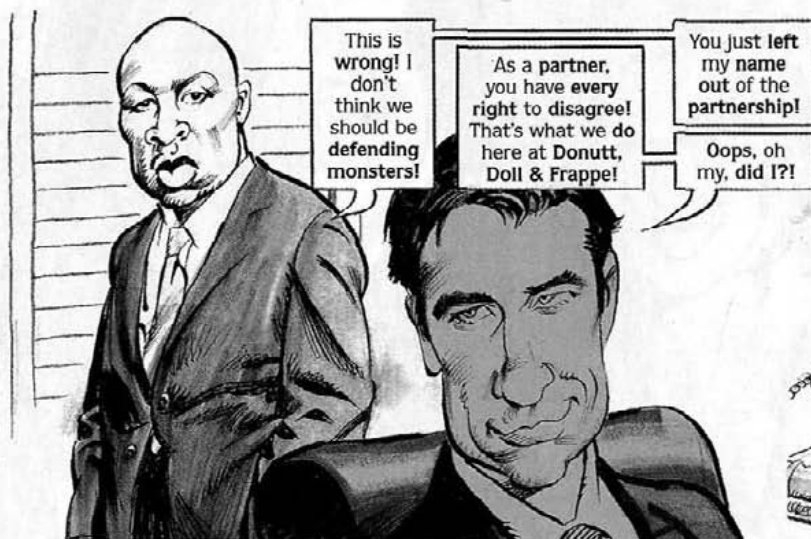

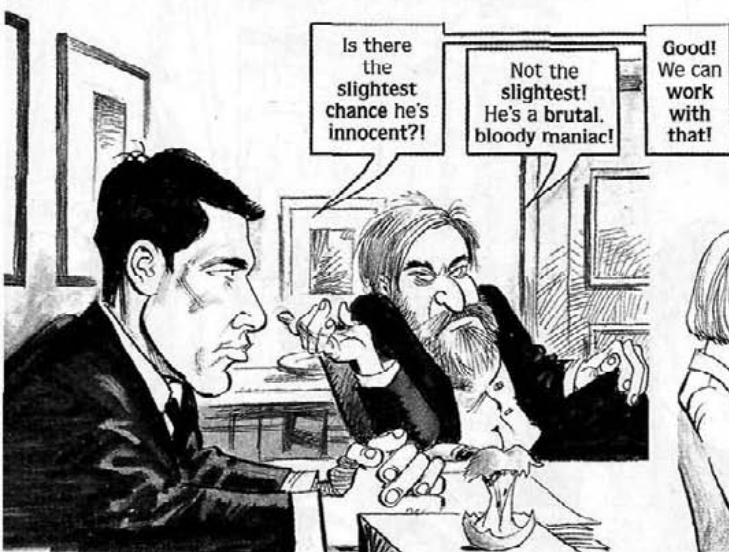

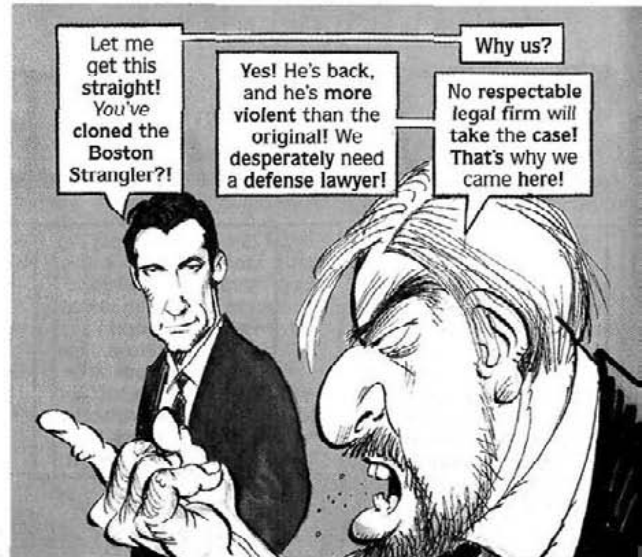

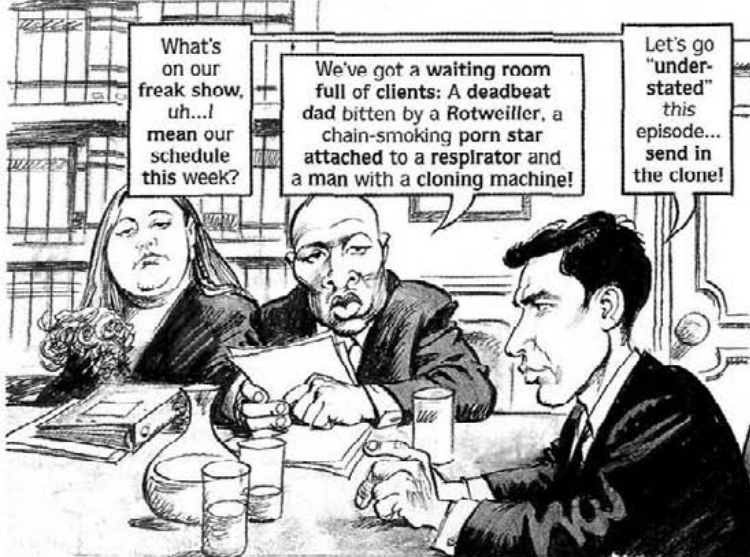

I'm Hellion Grumble, an Assistant District Attorney! I represent the Commonwealth! I've appeared in chambers! For a brief time I appeared in Bibby's chambers! I'm decent, honorable, I play by the rules! In this series that hurts me greatly!

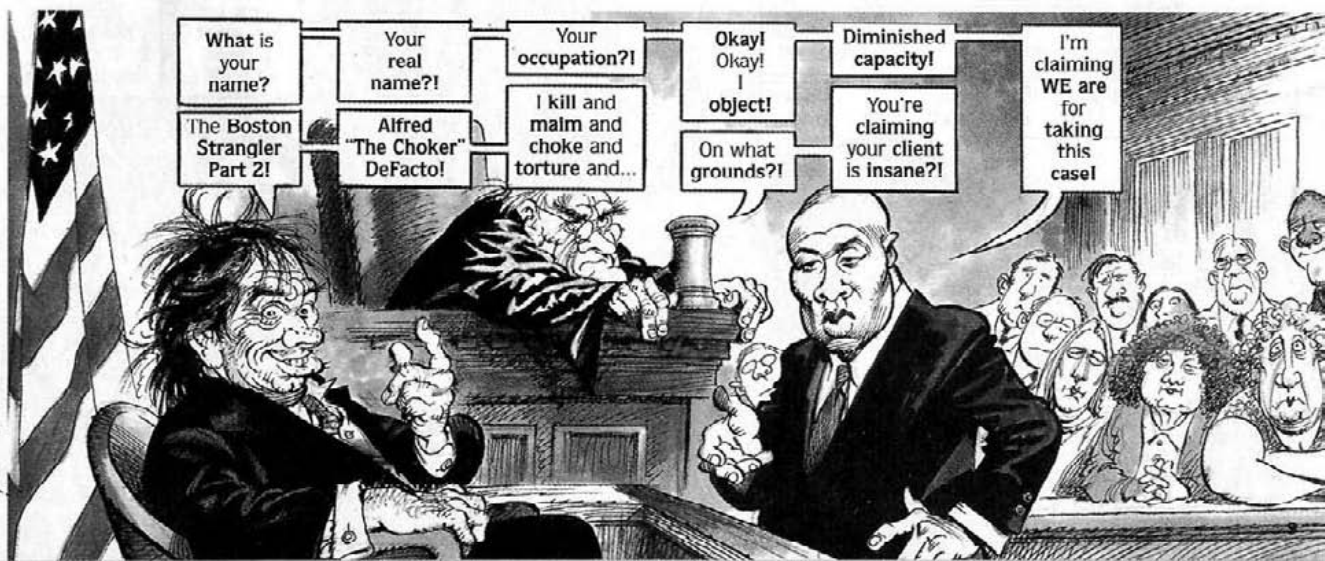

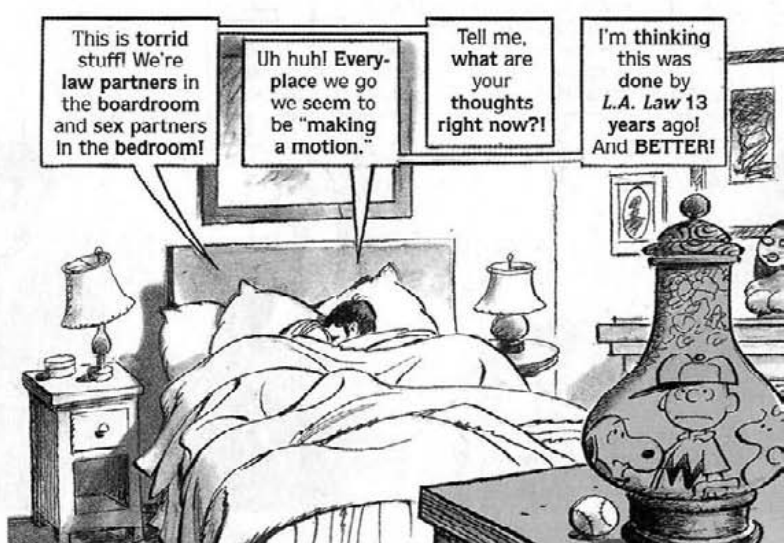

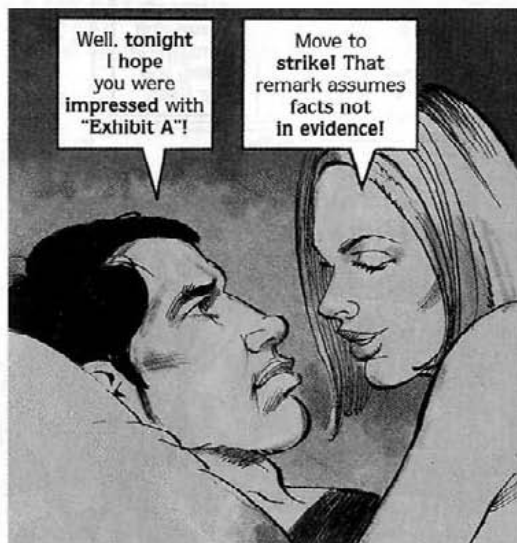

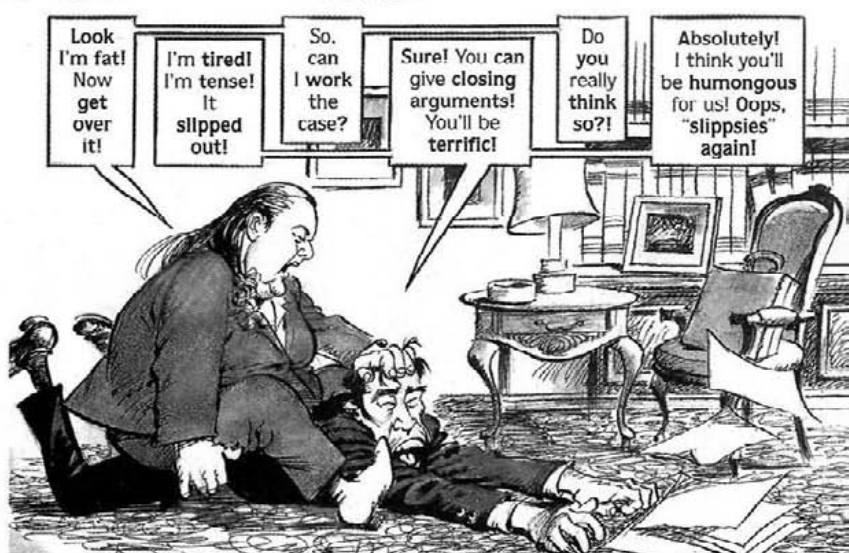

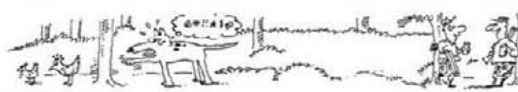

I'm Lindseed Doll! I'm the "cute" one in this firm! I'm intelligent! I'm tough! I'm skilled in a courtroom! I can open, I can close, I can cross examine with the best of them! And if that doesn't work, I've got a rack like Jennifer Love Hewitt!

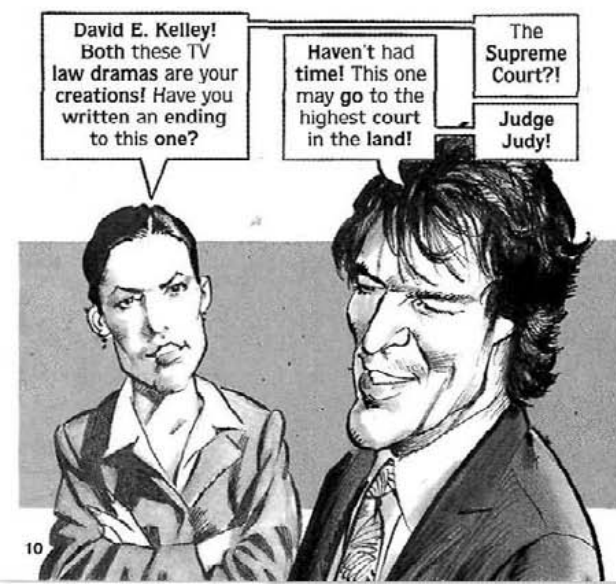

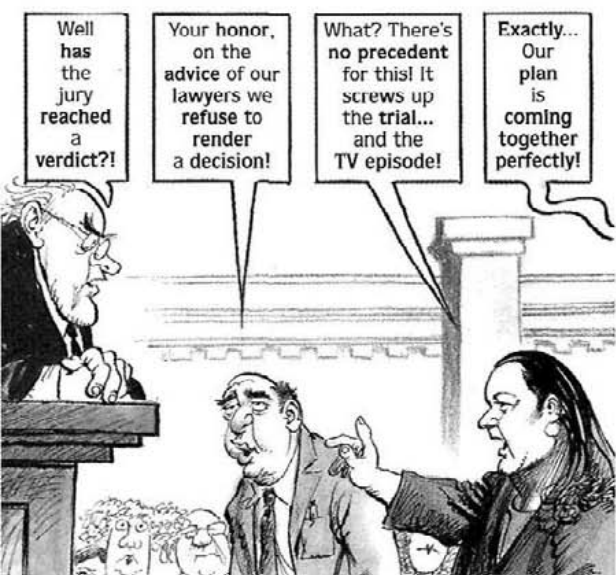

I'm Loosely Hatchett! I'm an outspoken, kooky, ditz legal secretary — just the traits clients are looking for in a respectable law firm! I do improbable things. Like yesterday I drew a happy face all over a subpoena in a triple homicide case. They were sorta pissed! Helloooooo! It's like, loosen up, guys!

I'm Ellenbore Frappe! I'm a lawyer! And a damn good one! I'm also an Emmy winning actress! I deserve respect! I have confidence the staff at MAD won't go for the obvious, cheap route and do nothing but fat jokes! Fat chance!

When you flip through your yearbook, we're willing to bet you notice two things:
1) the Yearbook Staff has the most photos and
2) the pages are covered with moronic scrawl. Here's...

JOE:

Even though I'm a year older than you & graduating, it was really great hanging out with you. Since I'm going to a junior college across town, maybe I'll see you next fall when I start visiting the high school in a desperate, pathetic attempt to cling to my past. — Chris.

Whassup Joe? It's been a wild year, man. Remember that one party where both of us got so wasted, we ran screaming naked across the freeway wearing nothing but our own puke? Both of us got such WICKED hangovers when we woke up in that drainage ditch the next day! Oh wait, you never got invited to parties — It must have been someone else. Weird, huh? By our judgment, watching other drivers pick their nose has dropped to #2 on the list of the most annoying things you can see while waiting at a red light! What's #1? It's those god-awful bumper stickers announcing someone's son/daughter/whatever has been named Honor Student at Such-And-Such School! Who gives a flying rat's patootie, especially since none of our readers are honor students anyway? For them and their proud parents, we suggest they polish up the bumper on the 'ol Dodge Neon and slap on a few of these...

BUMPER STICKERS

THAT REFLECT REAL SCHOOL LIFE

ARTIST: PAUL COKER
WRITER: JEFF KRUSE

In the mid-nineteenth century, Poet Edgar Allen Poe made people scream in horror with his masterpiece poem The Raven! One hundred fifty years later, MAD Magazine gets much the same result when it publishes its poem about Scream filmmaker...

Wes Craven

with apologies to Edgar Allen Poe

Once upon a midnight dreary, horror flicks did not seem weary,
 "Elm Street," "Halloween," and "Friday...the 13th" scared fans galore.
 Michael, Jason and that Freddie, made fan's stomachs feel unsteady,
 But no one was really ready, for schlock sequels by the score.
 Which director was most guilty of these schlock clones by the score?
 'Twas Wes Craven, king of gore.

Soon this genre was outdated, fans no longer were elated,
 By the bloodbaths that these movies seemed to churn out more and more.
 But one day an unknown writer, wrote a chiller that seemed brighter,
 Craven helmed this newest frighter, which made fun of flicks of yore.
 Why would Craven want to mock his horror films from days of yore?
 'Cause Wes Craven was a whore!

Would his "Scream" become a winner, forcing fans to lose their dinner?
 It seemed doubtful since its only star was young Drew Barrymore.
 Drew had peaked when she was seven, and got drunk by age eleven,
 So how in the name of heaven would this film get off the floor?
 Very soon it mattered not when Drew's guts splattered on the floor.
 On her, Craven slammed the door.

Wes Craven

Every horror fan was shaken, when Drew's life was quickly taken,
If this movie's biggest star was killed what else might be in store?
Was Neve Campbell next to buy it? Many hoped that Wes would try it,
For no fright fan could deny it — Neve was such a whiny bore.
Could a movie be successful with a whining, pouting bore?

"Yes!" Wes Craven's fans did roar.

This flick flew not on its story, or the fact that it was gory,
This film thrived upon the fact that it made "in-jokes" by the score.
Making fun of Tori Spelling, Fonzie at the students yelling,
One lone film geek always telling what we should be frightened for.
When he saw this Gen-X chiller was what fans were waiting for,
Quoth Wes Craven, "Let's make more."

Ah, distinctly all remember, one year later in December,
"Scream 2" was released upon the public with a mighty roar.
This plot had a large infusion of dumb twists that caused confusion.
What bizarre drug-crazed delusion, made this script a muddled bore?
Laurie Metcalf as the killer — could there be a bigger bore?
Still, cash Craven made galore.

"Scream" flicks, sure were money makers, so it spawned a pack of fakers.
"I Know What You Did Last Summer" was the first to wash ashore.
"Urban Legend," "Mrs. Tingle," these and more all seemed to mingle,
 Each and every freakin' single of these flicks we did abhor.
 Who began this competition of scare flicks we did abhor?
 'Twas Wes Craven launched this war.

Next, two years of hype and rumors, growing like malignant tumors,
 Built "Scream 3" up in a way that no one living could ignore.
 Once again Neve acted schmucky, in a sequel that was sucky,
 Worse, in fact, than "Bride of Chucky," was this flick that was a bore.
 The killer was — well, we won't tell you, should you plan to see this bore.
 Just blame Craven when you snore.

Now Wes Craven's "Screams" are staying, always playing, always playing,
 In the VCRs and theaters frequented by teens galore.
 And they say "3" is the last one, but we think they'll pull a fast one,
 We bet they've begun to cast one, for there's money in this gore.
 Yes we're sure we'll see another pointless film with pointless gore,
 When Wes Craven makes "Scream 4."

JUSTICE

Are you ready? When I say, "My client's criminal record is due to his tragic childhood..."

...I look down and pretend to wipe a tear from my eye, right?

Do you know who that is? That's Kevin Hordern! After he graduated they retired his football jersey!

He's so sloppy looking! Was he that great of a player?

No, they retired it for sanitary reasons!

Meet Aged Khristmastree: This renowned Swedish scientist joined the Tem-Poor-Peddle-It team in 1991 at a critical time — when he was flat broke and destitute from having not held a job in 16 years. Since he spent nearly the full length of those 16 years taking naps, he learned a lot about mattresses. One day, responding to his wife's nonstop nagging to him about not working, he shouted, "Shut up! I AM working!" In fact, he was formulating his revolutionary bedding ideas which involved stealing space age fibers from an exhibit at the Smithsonian Museum and shaping them to look something like a mattress. The rest is history!

You've read about it,
heard about it,
wondered about it, and then forgotten about it.
Now we want you to remember it and buy it so we can stop running these expensive ads!

We'll sleep 100% better knowing that you spent your money on... THE SWEDISH MATTRESS THAT MADE SLEEPING OBSOLETE!

The Tem-Poor-Peddle-It Mattress is the world's first weightless sleep system, perfect for anyone who weighs zero pounds or less! It's substantially less comfortable for those weighing more than that, however those weighing less than 20 pounds also report good results, and some have even been able to doze off for several minutes of gloriously uninterrupted sleep!

Our Bed Is The Bed Of Tomorrow!

Yes, the Tem-Poor-Peddle-It Mattress is the bed of tomorrow — that is if you order it today, and pay a HUGE FedEx shipping charge for overnight delivery! Otherwise it's the bed of next week (UPS), or the bed of a month from now, if you choose regular snail mail (USPS).

Sticky-Side-Up Cover!

The traditional thick padding that covers ordinary mattresses effectively keeps the steel springs inside, but creates an unpleasant hammock effect outside — especially if you hang the mattress between two trees. The Tem-Poor-Peddle-It's advanced design doesn't solve this problem, but its unique sticky-side-up cover cuts tossing and turning by an amazing 83%. It also makes getting out of bed 67% less likely on the first attempt!

It's Self-Ventilating!

The special micropoosopic structure of our mattress material self-ventilates to dissipate body heat. You'll feel cooler when you sleep on one of our mattresses at night, especially in rooms equipped with an air conditioning unit cranked up all the way!

Rave Reviews in the Press!

Magazines and newspapers have been printing rave reviews about the Tem-Poor-Peddle-It Mattress, because they were written by us, and appear in our paid advertisements!

We Stand By Our Conditional Guarantee!

We'll set up a brand new Tem-Poor-Peddle-It Mattress in your bedroom, and even remove the old bedding. If, after 13 weeks, you don't love it, we'll pick it up and take it back. And then you can sleep on the floor, because we certainly will have thrown out your old mattress! Then you decide which is more comfortable, your floor or our mattress! Remember, more than 25,000 doctors, medical professionals and sleep clinic workers recommend our mattress over sleeping on the floor!

- One convenient exorbitant payment!
- No charge for extra charges!

Ah, graduation day. After twelve years of enduring annoying teachers, nagging principals, poisonous cafeteria food and traumatic gym class group showers, you've finally made it! And how are you rewarded?

With a deadly-dull, meaningless graduation speech delivered by some alumni who's about as hip and down as Regis Philbin at a Wu-Tang concert!

Even worse, he pretends like life is good from here on in, instead of giving you the straight dope about your impending miserable journey into adulthood, as we do in...

MAD's Commencement Address for the Class of 2000

Ladies and gentlemen of the Class of 2000... The future is yours!

Mainly because the rest of us don't want anything to do with it! Global warming... overpopulation... biological warfare — man, it's really gonna suck!

And graduation is a time for celebration.

Like celebrating the fact that YOUR school beat the odds and didn't have a single classmate go off the deep end and mow you all down with a TEK-9 in the cafeteria!

You, the Class of 2000, are truly special, for you are the FIRST CLASS of the new millennium.

And, more importantly, you're the LAST CLASS that will ever have to listen to all that "Bridge to the 21st century" crap from politicians, advertisers and every computer company trying to con a buck out of you!

As you embark on your journey into a new era, ask yourself: "What am I taking away from my high school years"? A little wisdom...? A little maturity...?

Perhaps a little infection from that Freshman who swore he/she was a virgin...?

Whatever else you take away, you're taking away an important piece of paper called the high school diploma!

Which, thanks to decades of dumbing down by our nation's educators, has about as much value as a Bill Clinton promise! Not that that matters, because all the jobs you'll be competing for won't be worth a flying #$$^@ anyway! Did somebody say "McDonald's"?*

Once you have the diploma in hand, people will tell you to reach for the stars — to strive to be the best you can be.

Those people are idiots, 'cause you could study for the next 1,000 years, but unless you miraculously happen to have super-skills (and you don't) there's not a chance in hell you'll be the next Michael Jordan, Bill Gates or Steven Spielberg. Face it, your "best" will be sponging off Mom and Dad for as long as possible!

The glory of success is there, waiting for you to grab it!

Actually, the "glory of success" is waiting to be grabbed by, like, 2% of your classmates — the really geeky ones who actually did their homework — who might buck the trend and achieve fame, wealth and power...only to be struck down in the prime of their lives by cancer, an early heart attack, a car crash or a run-in with someone from the other 98% in a bar fight. So you see, life IS fair after all!

Whatever you decide to do, hold onto your dreams...

They might provide some meager bit of comfort after the world has beaten you down!

...and never be afraid to try and, perchance, to fail.

'Cause no matter how bad you blow it, at least you won't be as pathetic as these geezers in the front row from the classes of '29, '30, and '31 who have nothing better to do than fill their few remaining days by coming back to their old high school and spending three hours in a pair of damp Depends — just to get some cheap applause for not having croaked yet!

In closing, since I'm sure a few of you are in a hurry to meet your future head-on...

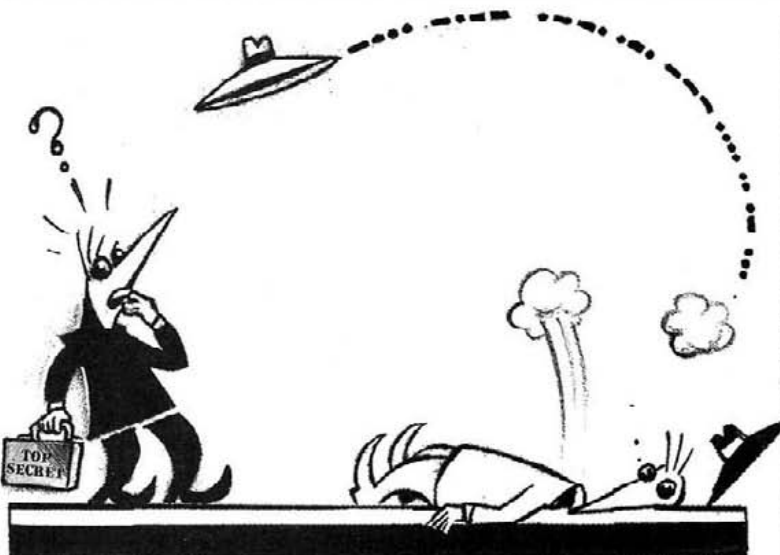

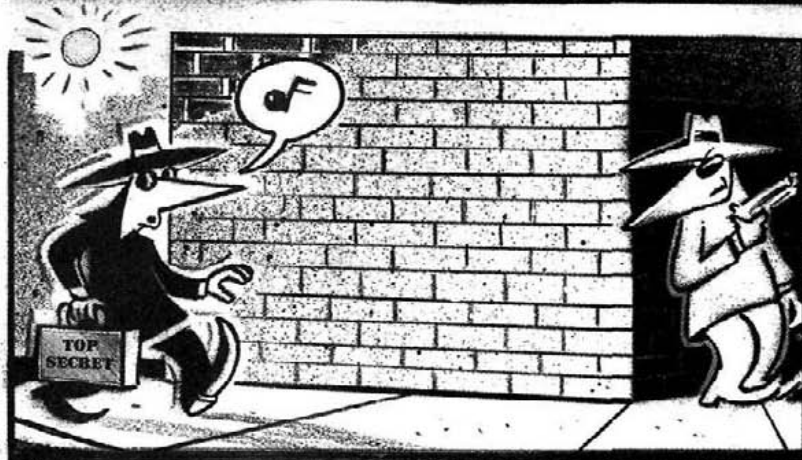

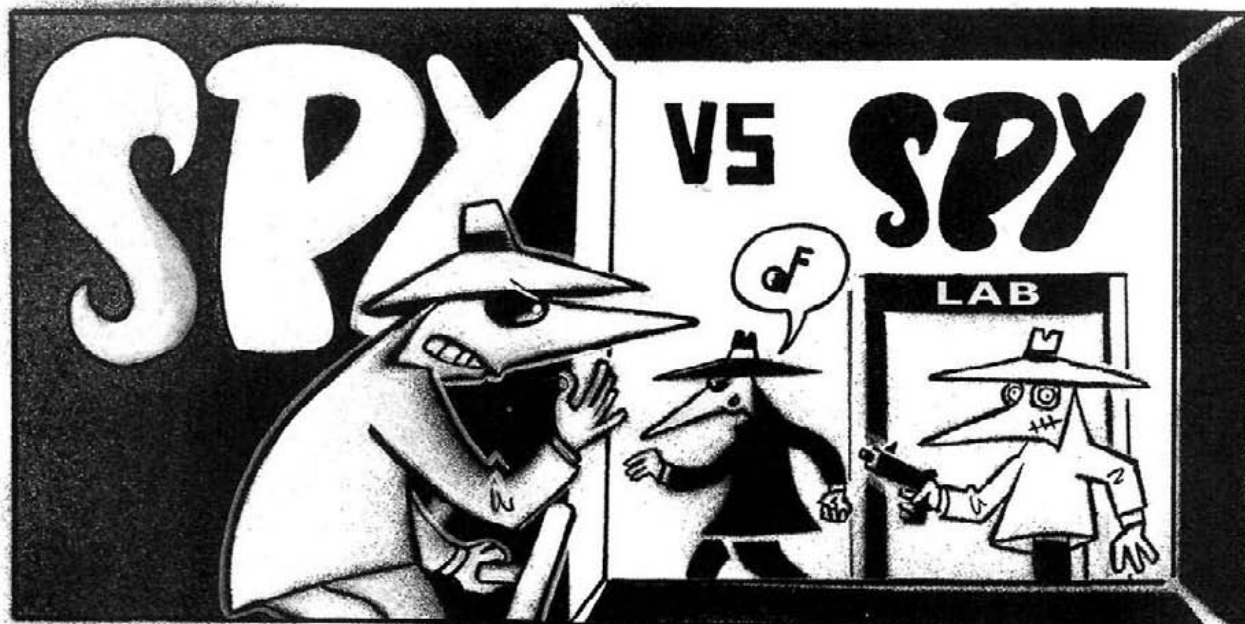

In a fatal drunk driving accident after getting tanked at the post-graduation party...

...let me just say: good luck. I hope my advice will be of value to you.

Although I doubt it, 'cause if I were any good at this sort of thing, I'd be sitting on my ass at home, collecting royalties like that putz with that "sunscreen" poem thing a few years back, instead of gazing out upon this sea of zils, barely making enough for cab fare to get me out of here.

Thank you.

Go to Hell.

The dictionary defines an anagram as "a word or phrase formed by rearranging the letters of another." Most anagrams are nonsense ("carthorse," for example, is an anagram of "orchestra" and "wholesome" becomes "shoe me low"), but sometimes, just sometimes, anagrams can tell us more. A lot more. A lot, lot, lot more. A whole heckuva lot more! Anyway, here's...

STILL MORE OBITUARIES for MERCHANDISING CHARACTERS

JUAN VALDEZ, 41, DIES IN COLOMBIA

Juan Valdez, a Colombian coffee worker, collapsed and died today while picking beans. He was 41, though years of working in the fields made him look much older.

"The plantation owners worked him fourteen hours a day, seven days a week under a blazing sun," said a co-worker, who refused to give his name out of fear of losing his job.

It is believed that Valdez, who was paid eleven dollars a month, required at least twenty cups of coffee per day to stay awake and keep pace on the job. This diet led to coffee nerves, then to "caffeine frenzy," a common killer among Colombian coffee workers.

In recent years, Valdez was forced to keep up with the demand for more exotic coffees, such as Mocha Valencia, Espresso Con Panna and Narino Supremo. These added pressures led to his collapse and death.

Valdez is survived by his donkey, Pablo, his wife, Maria and fourteen children, all of whom share a one-room dirt-floor hut. He was the grandson of the late El Exigente, who died under similar conditions several years ago.

In order to defray the costs of his funeral, a contribution cup will be placed at the cash register of all Starbucks nationwide.

TACO BELL CHIHUAHUA DIES OF DIGESTIVE DISORDER

The Taco Bell Chihuahua died today from a severe digestive disorder, brought on by a lifetime diet of tacos and burritos. A hospital spokesman said the spicy foods caused constant heartburn and bloating and eroded the lining of his stomach.

According to friends, the last words of the spokespooch were "Yo quiero Taco Bell? Ay Chihuahua, no mas!" A company official today denied rumors that the pup's remains will be ground into burrito filling.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow. Pawbearers include Mighty Dog, Rex the Wonder Dog, Uhu, Nipper and Chipper and descendants of the late Spuds MacKenzie.

MAYTAG REPAIRMAN, 67, DIES IN REFRIGERATOR

Remains of the Maytag Repairman, 67, were discovered today trapped inside a refrigerator. He had been dead for several months.

"We're not very surprised," said a company executive. "Never having been called before to repair a refrigerator, he had no idea what he was doing. We'd have never known he died if it hadn't been for the wailing of his basset hound."

In a similar accident several years ago, the Maytag Repairman suffered broken bones and internal injuries while peering into a washer during the spin cycle.

Not surprisingly, "The loneliest man in town" leaves no survivors. His funeral will be private with none expected to attend. He will be buried in an unmarked grave.

"He'd have wanted it that way," the executive said.

BETTY CROCKER DEAD AT 88

Baking legend Betty Crocker, 88, died today while undergoing her eleventh face-lift in fifty years.

"We thought the procedure would be a piece of cake," said a hospital spokesman, "but it turned out to be a recipe for disaster. She developed an untreatable yeast infection and soon we couldn't get a rise out of her. I guess it was one of those half-baked operations that just didn't pan out."

Crocker left no survivors. Her adopted son, the Pillsbury Doughboy, died several years ago in MAD issue 274.

Crocker's body has been taken to a local funeral home where she will be cremated in an oven preheated to 350 degrees.

PIZZA EMPEROR LITTLE CAESAR ASSASSINATED

Little Caesar, of "Pizza, pizza" fame, was assassinated in his toga on the Ides of March, it was learned today. The self-styled pizza emperor was stabbed twice with a double-edged sword by co-workers fed up with his double-talk.

Caesar, 22, had recently recovered from a severe case of beriberi, suffered when he doubled over in pain while dancing the cha-cha after dining on mahi-mahi in Bora Bora, according to doctors who treated him for double pneumonia after performing a double heart bypass complicated by a double hernia.

Funeral services will be held in Walla Walla. Pallbearers include Zsa Zsa Gabor, Boutros-Boutros Ghali, Dee Dee Myers, members of Duran Duran, and Toni and Tony of the group Tony Toni Toné.

PETS.COM SOCK PUPPET FOUND DEAD AT LOCAL LAUNDROMAT

The beloved Sock Puppet, spokes-dog, er, sock, er, puppet for the Internet pet supply seller Pets.com was declared dead today after his woolen body was found behind the dryer. The smart-aleck canine had been missing since Tuesday when he was mistakenly tossed in with a basket of dirty clothes headed for the Laundromat. A Pets.com executive said, "It's tragic, but hey, everyone loses a sock in the laundry now and then, right?"

Company attempts to replace Sock Puppet with a calf-length argyle in their commercials have not been met with enthusiasm. "Let's face it, this new guy has no socks appeal," said Gary Manfish, president of the Sock Puppet Fan Club.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been finalized. Sock Puppet is survived by a Right Hand who has remained in seclusion in a pants pocket since hearing the tragic news.
